Welcome!

The brochure you are holding in your hands right now should give you a little bit of orientation for the diverse program consisting of multi-day courses, panel discussions and cultural events. Degrowth - on the one hand this means criticism of growth and capitalism from radical, ecological and social perspectives. On the other hand, it means imagining specific utopias of a post-growth society where a good life for all is the fundamental core. With the panel discussions and summer school courses we want to encourage you to talk about visions for a social-ecological transformation of society. We ask: How do we want to live together? And how do we get there? With the panel discussions we would like to offer you an overview and starting point for your discussions. There is plenty of room for more exchange in the four-day summer school courses.

The climate camp Leipziger Land which hosts the Degrowth Summer School is a place where we look for answers to these big questions on a smaller scale and in everyday practices. We look for a transformation from theory to practice. Life at the climate camp is organized through grassroots organizing. This means that you can participate in all decision-making processes and that it is in our hands to organize the way we live together on the camp. You can discuss social-ecological transformations and utopian practices in the "open meetings", help in the kitchen or clean the compost toilets. You can find the most important information about life on the camp in the separate information brochure. We truly recommend you take a look at it. After debating important topics and having intense discussions we don’t want you to forget washing your hands properly, taking part in everyday camp life, cutting vegetables and doing the dishes.

We wish you a nice, exciting, inspiring and intense time at the Degrowth Summer School 2018

In this opening event of the degrowth summer school, we want to develop a common understanding of degrowth. After a short introduction of the concept of this year’s summer school, Matthias Schmelzer and Tonny Nowshien will inputs on degrowth and climate justice. After that, there will be an exchange about degrowth in different formats. The event should set the base for the debates of the coming days.

Tonny Nowshin is an activist from Bangladesh. She worked as a development professional for five years before coming to Germany. She is involved with the network to save the world’s largest mangrove forest Sundarbans. Combining her experience as an activist and training as an economist, she is currently exploring the concept of degrowth.

Matthias Schmelzer works at the Konzeptwerk Neue Ökonomie, is Permanent Fellow at the DFG-Research Group “Post-Growth Societies” at the University of Jena and teaches at the the University of Zürich.
Panel 1

It's (not) all about resources!

Coal phase out and societal change from a local to a global perspective

Sun, 29. July 2018
04.30 - 06.00 pm / main tent
DE, EN

Jens Hausner: BI Pro Pödelwitz / Bündnis Pödelwitz bleibt
Prof. Christian von Hirschhausen: TU Berlin
Yvonne Takang: Expert on Free Trade and Food Security
Moderation — Ruth Krohn: Degrowth Summer School Team

This year, the climate camp Leipzig Land and the degrowth summer school take place in Pödelwitz for the first time. What is the situation of the village? How can outsiders support the local community? How is this linked with the exit from coal in Germany and with the fight against fossil energies and free trade? Why do we need a great transformation in order to achieve (climate) justice? And how can we combine these endeavours and contribute something ourselves?

Jens Hausner is a farmer. He is married, has two kids and lives in Pödelwitz. He is in the local council of Großstolpen and spokesman of the citizens’ initiative “Pro Pödelwitz” as well as representative of the local mining area in the alliance “Future instead of coal”.

Prof. Christian von Hirschhausen is currently working at the Institute of Economic and Infrastructure Policy at Berlin University of Technology. His research fields are Industrial Economics, Environmental and Public Economics, Public Sector Management and the German “Energiewende”.

Ruth Krohn is currently working in the PR team of the Konzeptwerk. She has been part of the organizational teams of the degrowth summer schools since 2015 and is involved in different social movements. Her work connects the climate justice debate and degrowth.

Yvonne Takang is a Cameroonian Food security and Trade expert. She carries out advocacy and lobbying activities to improve on the living conditions of the poor and underprivileged. She holds degrees in Linguistics, Sustainable Development and International Cooperation from the University of Buea and the International Relations Institute of Cameroon. Yvonne is a member of the Africa Trade Network (ATN).
Panel 2
What kind of transformation do we need and want? And how could we get there?

Tue, 31. July 2018
08.00 - 09.30 pm / main tent
DE, EN

Dennis Eversberg: DFG-Kolleg Postwachstum Uni Jena
Charlotte Niekamp: Rheinland climate camp
Brototi Roy: Research & Degrowth / Degrowth India
Moderation — Nina Treu: Konzeptwerk

The climate camp calls for climate justice, the summer school for degrowth. What does this mean and why do we claim it? In this panel, we will first analyse the negative consequences of our current economic system and the need for societal transformation. We will then discuss the possibilities for change. Could degrowth also be a concept of and for the Global South? And how can we link the fight against coal and for climate justice with utopian ideas?

Dennis Eversberg is a sociologist and researcher at the DFG research group on Post-Growth Societies, University of Jena. His research focuses on subjectivity production in capitalist societies and on the social structure of the degrowth movement.

Charlotte Niekamp is active in the climate justice movement and strives to put radical politics (back) in society. She is a market gardener and adores queer perspectives on struggle and culture.

Brototi Roy is a PhD student at the Institute of Environmental Science and Technology, Autonomous University of Barcelona (ICTA-UAB) with a focus on environmental justice movements around coal conflicts in India. She is a member of Research & Degrowth and also the co-founder of the Degrowth India Initiative.

Nina Treu has been with Konzeptwerk Neue Ökonomie since its foundation 2011 and works on degrowth and transformation. For this year’s summer school, she does the programme coordinatio
Panel 3

Care Revolution and Degrowth

The economical system destroys the foundation of our lives. Apart from the advancing climate change, rising social inequality and commercialization of (nearly) all areas of life, we find less time and space to care about ourselves and others. What impacts has the capitalistic economy on the in-/visible care work? What does a living vision look like? On this panel, we discuss this and how we can accomplish the good life for everyone.

As an activist and mother, Alexandra Gerber has been working for four years and she can no longer separate these areas. In addition to being a mother, she is active for Care Revolution & Degrowth Summer School.

Since 2015, Charlotte Hitzfelder works at Konzeptwerk Neue Ökonomie and is a member of the network Care Revolution. During an apprenticeship in a hospital she collected different experience which influences her political interests. She currently works on the linkage between Degrowth and Care.

Christine Rudolf is managing director of the Genossinnenschaft Schokoladenfabrik eG, teaches economics at the HTW Berlin and conducts research in an international network on feminist macroeconomics.

Swantje Illig works since 2015 as a doctor in Rojava. In addition to many other activities, she initiated the Health Care Network in Rojava, which offers people the opportunity to study medicine. In another project, she is donating money for a hospital exclusively for women and children.
Panel 4

Resistance against coal - local, global, radical?

Thu, 2. August 2018
08.00 - 10.00 pm / main tent
DE, EN, ES

Karolina Drzewo: ausgeCO2hlt / Rheinland climate camp
Narlis Guzmán Angulo: César, Colombia
Thilo Kraneis: BI Pro Pödelwitz / Bündnis Pödelwitz bleibt
Hannelore Wodtke: Grüne Allianz Welzow

Moderation — Tina Keller: ausgeCO2hlt

This panel unites different perspectives on the resistance against coal. Why do we need resistance and what kind? What are the similarities and differences? Can the local population relate to climate justice? Do people outside the mining areas know where their electricity comes from? How can we combine local, national and international struggles? And how do we achieve a change of mind of the general population and politicians?

Karolina Drzewo demands the immediate coal phase-out for climate justice and is therefore active as spokesperson of the Ende Gelände alliance. As an activist of the group ausgeCO2hlt she’s fighting for a system change in the Rhineland mining area and worldwide.

Narlis Guzmán Angulo defenses human rights and the environment. She is the representative of an afro-Colombian local council and president of an association of landless farmers in César, Colombia. She is married, has four kids and is a currently unemployed pedagogue.

Tina Keller is part of ausgeCOhlt, a campaign for the immediate phaseout of lignite. At at moment, she focusses on local resistance.

Thilo Kraneis is an engineer in welding technology. He is married, has two kids and lives in Pödelwitz. He is a member of the steering committee and of the curatorship of the local church and member of the citizens' alliance Pro Pödelwitz.

Hannelore Wodtke, is member of the city council of Welzow (Lusatia), chairwoman of its environmental chamber and member of the citizens' alliance “Green future Welzow”. She fights for the survival for the district of Proschim against the mine of Welzow South II.
Children's program

Experience for yourself what it means to transform our world. We want to establish a connection between humans and nature, local and global, hearts and minds. The climate camp offers the framework to combine and experience social and ecological action. There will be the opportunity for solidarity companionship for the said workshops that do not take place in the tent, as well as a whispering translation into English.

The meeting point will be 15 minutes before the beginning at the open space for kids/young people. The age recommendation is only for orientation, not a restriction.

Trial climbing
from 5 years / DE, EN
Fr, 29. July / 10.00 - 12.00 am
Sa, 30. July / 10.00 - 12.00 am
Su, 31. July / 10.00 - 12.00 am

Placing banner at inaccesable areas, squatting trees to protect them against cutting down or blocking transportation routes for instance during nuclear transports. Climbing is an effective tool for political actions and fun for children of every age. During the trial climbing course you will be taught to climb trees by using climbing harnesses, ropes, carabiners and slings supervised by action climbers. Open course; you don’t have to be on time.

Build and plant raised beds
from 4 years / DE
Sa, 30. July / 03.00 - 05.30 pm
Su, 31. July / 03.00 - 05.30 pm
Tue, 2. August / 03.00 - 05.30 pm

Together with participants of the intercultural garden of ANNALINDE we get to know the structure, functioning and the correct planting of raised beds. You can collaborate diligently: measuring, plugging, cutting, filling the beds, planting - there is plenty to do! And in the end we can cook a tea from the planted herbs and enjoy a well-earned break in the raised bed garden.

Construction playground depending on interest, from 3 or from 6 years / DE
Sa, 30. July - Tue, 2. August/
10.00 - 12.30 am and 03.00 - 05.30 pm

Nailing boards together and build a house, a bridge or a ship from this? It is not that easy? Then come over and try it out. We create our own world with our own hands and imagination. Even more experienced people are welcome to support young people and to facilitate their journey.

Looking for wild adventures through forest and meadow from 3 years / DE / kids space
Sa, 30. July / 10.00 - 12.30 am
Mo, 1. August / 03.00 - 05.30 pm

How does a tree smell? How does a bird sing? How does a fox run? And which plant can you really eat? We want to explore with you the nature around the climate camp and observe what moves, grows and crawls. We will take magnifying glasses with us, blindfold our eyes, feel the forest and work with natural materials. Together we want to find out what will happen to all living beings, if even more large excavators transform the nature around Pödelwitz into big empty holes.

Create your own wormfarm for your apartment from upcycling materials and public worm feeding
kids space
Su, 31. July / 03.00 - 05.30 pm

Learn more about the little red worms and learn how to produce compost at home. This can be done either on the balcony, in the backyard, in the cellar or directly in the kitchen.

From several 10L plastic buckets we will build and fill a worm-friendly apartment. The new little inhabitants will be fed live with fresh kitchen waste. A worm show to see, touch and smell.

The worm farm prototype will be given away by raffle.

What is actually the greenhouse effect? And how clean is the air in our environment?
from 6 years / DE
Mo, 1. August / 10.00 - 12.30 am

Let’s go on an expedition together and get to the bottom of these questions. You can expect stories, questions and games about climate and the environment. At different stations in the open air we learn what climate is and why it changes. In our scavenger hunt hints will help us to solve various puzzles and at the end we will discover the secret to the climate treasure.

True Cost of Coal
from 8 years / DE / tent 7
Tue, 2. August / 10.00 - 12.30 am

Let yourself be fascinated by the huge black-and-white Hidden Object of an artist collective from the USA and join us in this interactive workshop with pictures and stories. Let’s have a look at different animal species that are affected by the environmental destruction and go on a long journey as filu the fern until we become coal. With fingerpaint you have the possibility to give the black and white picture some color.

How to distribute these comics and create a local debate about the issue important for the community. During the workshop everyone would learn to create a wall-poster comics. Yes, Any Body Can Draw.

Concert: Kalimera
Mon, 30. July / 08.00 - 09.30 Uhr / DE, EN / main tent
Kalimera are Claudi, Thea, Susi, Isa...Every human being, no matter where they come from, deserves a friendly welcome at the borders of Europe. This is the opinion of the band Kalimera (Greek for “good morning”). Their performed texts are sociocritical, but also personal and poetic. Their style is somewhere between soul and pop, groovy beats and polyphonic singing. Lean back and get inspired!

Film: BRAND II
conversation with director
Sun, 29. July / 08.30 - 10.00 am / DE, EN / cinema
BRAND - A Journey into coal mining in Germany and a journey of thought to the core of the ecological crisis. A film trilogy about the fossil fuel economy, brown coal (lignite), climate policy and the resistance in the Rhineland by Susanne Fasbender in cooperation with the Hambach Forest Film Collective. Part II: Presence of old places and costing nature.

Theatre Performance: "Eldorado Europe"
Riadh Ben Ammar
Mon, 30. July / 09.30 - 11.00 pm / DE, EN, FR / main tent
After a long period of hope and fear Sami finally arrived at his destination: Europe. There, he is confronted with a totally different reality than expected. Living in a refugee home, he tells about his daily life, being characterized by fears about deportation, criminalization and racism. In “Eldorado Europa“ the artist Riadh Ben Ammar from Tunisia intriguingly explains, how European migration politics acts on the life of young people from Africa.

¡Andal rolling Cinema
Tue, 1. August
Thu, 2. August / 08.30 - 10.00 pm / DE, EN / cinema
¡Andal - the rolling Cinema
Under the trees in the tiny film garden it’s getting cozy. Impressive documentation and experimental movies gonna catch you for a rest and let you chill down while talking about what you’ve seen or gonna watch soon. Make your self comfortable, lean back and we’ll surprise you with great cinema!

Forum Theatre Play: „Who Cares?“
Wed, 1. August / 08.00 - 09.30 pm / DE, EN / main tent
Evelyn cares for her ill and slightly demented father Richard. She has hardly any time off since her father rejects any other nursing staff. Martin, Evelyn’s brother, is unwillingly and rarely helping out to care for him and doesn’t seem to have any talent to do so … The forum theatre play “Who cares?” deals with patriarchal ideals of families and it becomes evident that care work lacks societal recognition. Different perspectives on injustice related to care work become visible.

Concert: Riosentí
Wed, 1. August / 09.30 - 11.00 pm / ES / main tent
Riosentí is a musical project which has its roots in Latin America. Josué Avalos from Mexico and Aline Novarp from Argentina create songs and energetic sones accompanied by guitar and jarana, inspired by the traditions from south east Mexico. The music from Riosentí is growing from sensation and experience… experimental fusion and roots.
